Since 1849, this country's oldest state fair has been hosting the Blue-Ribbon best in Michigan agriculture and industry. Nearly 500,000 people visit the Fair during the thirteen days and nights of great family entertainment.

The fair brings rural, urban and suburban people together in a fun-filled setting that nurtures good old fashioned family values. Where else can you see a lamb being born, listen to a free concert, milk a cow, watch a parade, enjoy a children's theatre production, see the World's Largest Stove, win a contest and have a family picnic . . . all in one day for one low price?

- DETAILS: The 2007 Michigan State Fair will be held August 22nd through September 3rd at Woodward Avenue and Eight Mile Road in Detroit, the intersection where Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties meet.
